Reading Advice Network Quality Standard

The Reading Advice Network (RAN) brings together the voluntary organisations who give information and advice to people who live or work in Reading, with the aim of improving the quality and accessibility of those services. The right information and advice, given when people are facing a crisis or at their most vulnerable, can transform lives for the better. The RAN Quality Standard is designed to enable your organisation, your funders and your service users to be confident that you are giving a high-quality service to the people who come to you for help. It sets out the key elements that make up a high-quality service and shows how these can be demonstrated.

In addition to the RAN Quality Standard, your organisation will need to secure the Safe and Sound Governance Mark awarded by Reading Voluntary Action (RVA). This covers areas such as the governance and management of your organisation, financial control, staff and volunteer policies, monitoring performance, safeguarding and health and safety. The requirements are set out in an RVA booklet which works as a self-assessment tool, but to be awarded the Mark you need to contact RVA. They will arrange a consultation based on the self-assessment tool, and offer the support your organisation might need to achieve the award. The Safe and Sound Governance Mark is a requirement for full membership of the Reading Advice Network.

The RAN Quality Standard, which complements the Safe & Sound Governance Mark, is in two parts:

Part 1 covers organisations that signpost and give assisted information.

Part 2 covers organisations that give advice and do casework.

‘Signposting’, ‘Assisted information’, ‘Advice’ and ‘Casework’ are all defined in the Glossary at the end of this Standard.

This booklet works as a self-assessment tool, so you can take the part(s) that cover the services your organisation provides and work through each of the key elements to see how your organisation measures up. To become a full RAN member, which Reading Borough Council now expects of any organisation delivering its commissioned services that gives information or advice, get in touch with RAN at QS@readingadvicenetwork.org.uk. We will arrange an independent assessment for your organisation against the appropriate part(s) of the Standard, and offer additional training or support, where necessary, to enable you to achieve the Standard. The assessment will take into account the size and nature of the organisation, and focus not on whether its systems are simple or complex but whether they achieve the best outcomes for service users.

NB: Any organisation that already holds one of the following Quality Standard Accreditations will automatically have met the requirements of the correspondingly marked RAN Quality Indicators. Assessors will require proof of accreditation.

Glossary Key definitions

Advice – involves an assessment and diagnosis of the client's need, so may involve specific questions and/or requests for further information to identify the client's actual need, not just their expressed need. This may then be followed up by:

- Providing information and explaining options
- Identifying any further action required or identifying next steps
- Signposting the client to a specialist resource following thorough assessment of their needs
- Assisting the client to make a referral to or appointment with a specialist advisor or service
- Identifying relevant legislation or regulation and advising how it would apply to the client's circumstances – including identifying the implications and consequences of proceeding/not proceeding and the grounds for taking action, and advising on the merit of such actions
- Identifying dates by which specific actions must be taken in order to secure the client's position
- Assisting a client to identify and/or fill in relevant forms – e.g. claim forms, financial statements etc.
- Assisting the client to draft a letter or letters to relevant third parties
- Assisting the client to identify what supporting information they may need to produce

- Making telephone calls or sending emails on behalf of the client to secure specific information if appropriate and the client is not able to do this without assistance

Advisors

- Must always be trained and competent
- Tailor advice to the needs of the particular client, i.e. advice is person specific
- Normally conclude their work with or for the client in one interview, but may have some further contact with the client following actions resulting from that one interview, if required
- Do not act on behalf of the client, the client retains responsibility for the matter being dealt with
- Must give advice that is accurate, current and complete

Assisted information – providing clients with support to access and use the information they have requested. This may be as a result of a client's expressed need or a simple assessment of their capability and any vulnerability.

Casework – involves an assessment and diagnosis of the client's need, so may involve specific and/or requests for further information to identify the client's actual need, not just their expressed need. This may then be followed up by:

- Taking action on behalf of a client to move the case on
- Initial negotiations with a third party on behalf of a client, by telephone, email or letter
- Undertaking follow up work, which might include
 - Taking action to obtain detailed information on behalf of the client
 - Challenging the decision of a third party
 - Further negotiations with a third party to protect the client's rights and/or effect resolution
- Undertaking a larger volume of work over an extended period of time with and/or for the client
- Supporting or representing the client at a court or tribunal to challenge or appeal against a decision

Caseworkers

- Must be someone who has the required level of competence
- Must present themselves to third parties as acting on behalf of the client
- May be the client's named representative with the client's agreement

More complex casework requires the presentation of complex legal arguments. This may include

- Representation and litigation, e.g. at a court or a tribunal hearing
- Applications to a higher court or tribunal
- Complex negotiation

In these situations the caseworker –

- Must have detailed knowledge of case law
- Must have knowledge of related areas of law
- Must have skill and experience in the type of case they are representing

Giving Information – providing information in response to the client's own definition and assessment of their enquiry or need. The client is then responsible for taking any further action that they require.

Signposting – providing factual information about the role of another organisation and information about how to find or contact that organisation. The client is then responsible for taking any further action they require.

Further terminology

Advice checking – advice provided is checked by a supervisor to ensure that advice provided is accurate, current and complete

Corrective Action – if information or advice is found not to be accurate, current or complete, action is taken to ensure that in future information or advice is accurate, current and complete and, if possible, that a client who has not been given the correct information or advice is followed up and given the correct information or advice.

Enquiry – an initial enquiry from a client which results in them receiving information, advice or casework

Enquiry checking – initial enquiries are checked by a supervisor to ensure that assessment and diagnosis of client need is accurate and effective and that the enquiry is then handled by the right person

Outcome – the result of the information, advice or casework for the client

Regular supportive contact – the staff member or volunteer has the opportunity at least every four to six weeks to discuss issues with their line manager

Supervision – professional oversight of the work of staff or volunteers who provide information, advice or casework, to ensure that –

- Their work is accurate
- Their work is timely
- Their work is proportionate
- They are supported well, in order to be able to give their best and maintain well-being, and to prevent stress and/or burnout
- Clients are treated with respect
- Workloads are manageable
- Training opportunities are identified and appropriate training is provided
- Clients are signposted, supported, advised or are able to access a caseworker according to their need and that they achieve the best available outcome to meet that need

Supervisor – a person who provides line management and professional support – this can be in terms of leading and managing a session, and also providing professional support and mentoring
